Dear Mayor and City Council:

I hope this cover letter gives you a look into why I think my background will fit well into the desires of the citizens, business leaders, community, staff, Mayor and City Council of Brighton, Colorado. Having evaluated the desired traits for your next City Manager, I know most applicants would say they have those experiences. I would tell you the employees, residents and elected officials I have worked with in both New Mexico and Pennsylvania would say I regularly displayed those leadership traits. I was honored to be named the 2016 New Mexico City Manager of the Year by my peers and endorsed by my elected officials.

I am interested in being the dynamic and ethical leader that tackles future challenges for Brighton and helps the elected officials and staff accomplish their goals. Having served the last 20 years as an officer in the military and 14 years in municipal government, I know firsthand the importance of a positive relationship between staff, elected officials, the community and their engaged, visionary and visible City Manager. My military reserve duty consists of coordinating search and rescue operations and emergency management at Tyndall Air Force Base, Florida. I hold multiple FEMA and NIMS certifications which would be value added in this position. Many of the missions I have coordinated include missing skiers or hikers in Colorado. I have volunteered to deploy to Djibouti, Africa in 2008 and Haiti in 2010 where I assisted almost 2,000 Haitians in obtaining medical evacuations after their earthquake. I am will retire in May 2017.

My story as a City manager changed three years ago after attending the Harvard Kennedy School's Senior Executive Program for State and Local officials in July 2013. This transformational experience provided me the opportunity to collaborate with leaders from around the world and I was able to learn from some of this country's best professors. At least 10 of my classmates were from the Denver-metro area. I came back from this experience knowing that to move our community forward, I had to invest more time in some critical areas both internal and external to the organization. Internally, I committed to the professional development/training of our employees and empowered them to develop solutions to insure our organization was high performing. Externally, I doubled my efforts on stakeholder inclusiveness and actively engaged our citizens on many issues. These strategies produced significant results. I was recently accepted and attended Harvard Kennedy School's "Leadership for the 21st Century" course with 72 executives from 25 various countries.

In reading customer service is a priority; I thought it was important to talk about the culture I built in Hobbs, New Mexico. As City Manager of Hobbs, I changed our mission statement to "Our Mission is SERVICE." SERVICE is used as an acronym for Safety, Engagement, Responsiveness, Visionary, Inclusive, Customer Driven and Enhancing the Quality of life. Our employees have changed their mindset to a service-minded organization. We measured how the employees felt about the leadership team and our culture. I am fortunate to have proposed and implemented a plan to my current City Commission and have delivered multiple programs that have significantly improved employee engagement. In fact, our third survey of our employees rated my management skills 46% higher than the national benchmark of thirty other local government managers. While average public and private organizations have a 27% engagement rate of their employees, my team and I have been able to grow that number to 57% in Hobbs with some of my leadership initiatives.

In Hobbs, I have approximately 500 full time employees and am responsible for a budget of $197 million. The City was recently ranked the 7th fastest growing micro-city (population under 50,000) in the country for the second year in a row giving me experience in a high growth community. Solid planning and financial management has helped increase our cash position from $65M to over $116 million since my arrival and we have consistently managed to maintain AAA bond rating and a budget surplus of over thirty-four percent. While working for a fiscally conservative city commission, I have had the opportunity to serve a diverse community. It has been my pleasure to lead a team of employees who have made positive impacts such as implementing public-public and public-private partnerships to deliver significant quality of life improvements, enhancing public safety, reducing crime, adding critical housing stock, increasing employee productivity, reducing employee legacy costs, improving customer service and implementing employee morale initiatives which all benefited the staff and our citizens. In addition, I have a history of working well with community organizations and collective bargaining groups and delivering significantly improved community and labor relations.

In Hobbs, I started a strategic plan to invest some of our surplus on programs which reduced legacy costs. We just completed a $2 million LED lighting campaign converting the majority of our exterior and internal lights to LED. We also have computerized all of our mechanical systems for more energy efficiency. Shortly after arriving, I developed, with the employee's involvement, a transition plan to move employees from traditional vacation/sick leave plan to a paid-time-off plan. This move saved the community $2 million upfront and $500,000 per year moving forward in legacy costs.

I have read with interest about Brighton's desires in their next leader to have experience with public-private partnerships. My multiple experiences in public-private partnerships will be a key asset with the opportunities in your community which will need to be addressed. First, I want to specifically address my economic development success through collaboration. Outside of inspiring our employees, my most significant accomplishment has been balancing multiple economic development projects simultaneously while working with external stakeholders. Collectively these projects, many with other private or public partners will deliver over $150 million in quality of life improvements to our community. Some of these partners include a local family foundation, the City government, the local municipal school district, the New Mexico Junior College and the University of the Southwest, a local private university. In reading about your desires for a collaborative, solutions-oriented leader I have to share my experience with the synergy it took to take on a community project here in Hobbs. Together, with the partners listed above we worked on consolidating outdated facilities and agreeing to the design, construction and ongoing maintenance of a $65 million dollar Center Of Recreational Excellence (CORE.) This approximately 160,000 square foot multi-generational facility will include an indoor water park, indoor competition swimming pool, indoor warm water therapy pool, indoor soccer and a state-of-the-art recreational center which started construction in August 2016. I have worked on this effort for the last four years and have been recognized by our partners as the leader who has brought this project to fruition. I would relish the opportunity to share my lessons learned while delivering future economic development projects in collaboration with community stakeholders.

The highlight of my economic development last year was opening our new municipal golf course, Rockwind Community Links, which was listed by Golf Digest in their annual "Top 10 New Golf Courses." Golf Inc. magazine listed Rockwind in the Top 5 for "International Golf Developments of the Year." These accolades lead to the USGA asking me to be a featured speaker at their 2016 Pace of Play and Innovation Symposium in Pasadena, CA. The USGA just published a five-minute video on their website calling Hobbs a "model community" in growing the game of golf with unique solutions I helped developed.

I have had experience working with municipalities that are both financially stressed and financially sound. Both situations offer their unique challenges and opportunities. From 2002-2010, I worked for the City of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, a community of approximately 45,000 residents in a college-town environment and $40 million budget. The downtown is anchored by two private universities and provided me an opportunity to collaborate on their growth strategies within our community. During this period of time, I implemented a successful "wireless city" initiative, drove a comprehensive economic development program which delivered over $150 million of new projects and was a catalyst for 56 new businesses opening. As Brighton is known for innovation, my experiences will help me fit right in developing solutions for the next 20 years. I also implemented a more hands-on approach of solid fiscal management which enabled Wilkes-Barre to see an audited $57 million turnaround during my tenure. This experience has led me to always be fiscally responsible with government funds no matter what the project or budget. Also, my varied experience with public-private-partnerships will assist me in collaborative efforts with regional partners on beneficial community projects in Brighton.

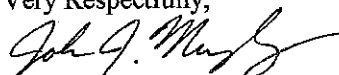

In addition to having a Master's in Public Administration, my dedication to professional development led to my completion of the Harvard Kennedy School's Senior Executive Program for State and Local officials. I also attended the Senior Executive Institute at the University of Virginia where I was trained on turning municipal organizations into high performing organizations. I have sent almost fifteen senior managers from Hobbs to the LEAD training at UVA and three staff/elected officials to the Harvard Kennedy School. I also completed the ICMA Gettysburg Leadership Institute and many different leadership training courses in the military. I had multiple classmates in these programs that were either elected or appointed from Colorado. The experiences I shared with these leaders will assist me in any regional collaborative efforts.

In January of 2014, I was one of 33 City/City Managers across the world selected to be on ICMA's Leadership Task Force which helped author a white paper on the complex challenges facing local governments over the next ten years. I have kept abreast of the most progressive options in organizational management, leadership and turning governmental teams into high performing organizations.

The City Manager position in Brighton is an outstanding opportunity! I know living in the Brighton would afford my family an amazing quality of life. My wife and I have five daughters who are our priority, and it is clear Brighton is a vibrant, safe, friendly, family oriented community with outstanding educational opportunities. My sister lives in the area and has taught in the Brighton schools and we would love to relocate near family. My hope is the City of Brighton is looking for a seasoned, energetic leader who is dedicated to the municipal management profession and is prepared to make a long-term commitment.

While the position in the Brighton will be sought after by my peers across the country, I believe my extensive military background and professional development coupled with my impactful governmental experience will give the elected officials, staff and residents the principled, community-oriented, and selfless leader they deserve. I am very excited about this opportunity and hope to demonstrate my organizational leadership skills in your community while inspiring the employees in Brighton.

Very Respectfully,

John J. Murphy, ICMA-CM
